

Master Gardener Advanced Education:

Returning Fruit to the American Backyard

Where and When:

Saturday, June 28, 2008, 10am-noon

Weaver Auditorium, Coastal Institute, URI Kingston campus

Description: This exciting workshop will be presented by award-winning biologist, gardener, writer and television personality, Roger Swain. Dr. Swain, known to millions as "the man in the red suspenders" is the Science Editor of "Horticulture" magazine, and has been a regular on the television shows "The Victory Garden" and "People, Places and Plants." In this special class, you will learn the secrets of growing fruit in your own backyard.

The opinions expressed by Master Gardener workshop presenters do not necessarily reflect the policies of URI administration, faculty or staff.

Registration and Fees:

This workshop is open to the general public, as well as Master Gardeners and interns. The fee is $20 for MGs and interns, and $25 for the public. Space is limited, so all participants must pre-register for this class. Please mail your check, payable to the URI Foundation, along with the attached registration form to: Cynthia Drummond, CELS Outreach Center, 3 East Alumni Ave., Kingston, RI, 02881-0804. You can also pay by check or cash at the door, but only if you are already registered. If you have questions, please contact the Master Gardener Hotline (only in RI) at 1-800-448-1011, Monday - Thursday, 9:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m.
